- We encourage everyone to enter their student attendance monthly – especially since the new deadline is mid-July and any data submitted/changed after mid-July may affect their ADA reporting
 - School districts need to report accurate student attendance as this directly impact school districts' finances by impacting the calculation of the 9 month average daily attendance and best three months average daily attendance (ADA). The 9 month ADA and best three months' ADA impact funding school districts received. The 9 month ADA is utilized in the calculation of school districts' Per Capita Tuition Charge (PCTC). The PCTC is utilized is school districts' private facility reimbursement, excess special education costs (4 times the PCTC), orphanage tuition reimbursement, tuition districts can charge for non-resident students, tuition districts are required to pay to charter schools, etc. The best three months' ADA directly impacts calculation of school district reorganization incentive payments, school construction grants, etc.
