What is Secondary Transition?

A process of planning and service delivery that enables students who have disabilities to successfully attain their post-secondary goals.
The purpose of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) is to ensure that all children with disabilities have available to them a free and appropriate public education (FAPE) that emphasizes special education and related services designed to meet their unique needs and prepare them for further education, employment and independent living.

(34CFR §300.1(a))
Federal transition requirements for students with disabilities age 16 and up

- Beginning not later than the first IEP to be in effect when the child turns 16 ... and updated annually, thereafter, the IEP must include –
  - Appropriate measurable postsecondary goals based upon age appropriate transition assessments related to training, education, employment, and, where appropriate, independent living, and... 34CFR §300.320(b)(1)
  - The transition services (including course of study) needed to assist the child in reaching those goals. 34CFR §300.320(b)(2)

Note: Illinois school code governing special education states that transition planning for students with disabilities shall begin by age 1 ½. 23 IAC 226.230(c)
Federal transition requirements for students with disabilities age 16 and up

a) Transition services means a coordinated set of activities for a child with a disability that:

1. is designed within a results-oriented process, that is focused on improving the academic and functional achievement of the child with a disability to facilitate movement from school to post school activities, including post-secondary education, vocational education, integrated employment, continuing and adult education, adult services, independent living or community participation...

2. is based on the individual child’s needs, taking into account the child’s strengths, preferences and interests...
§300.305 Additional requirements for evaluations and reevaluations.

(e) Evaluations before change in placement.

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (e)(2) of this section, a public agency must evaluate a child with a disability in accordance with §300.304 through 300.311 before determining that the child is no longer a child with a disability.

(2) The evaluation described in paragraph (e)(1) of this section is not required before the termination of a child’s eligibility under this part due to graduation from secondary school with a regular diploma, or due to exceeding the age of eligibility for FAPE under State law.

(3) For a child whose eligibility terminates under circumstances described in paragraph (e)(2) of this section, a public agency must provide the child with a summary of the child’s academic achievement and functional performance, which shall include recommendations on how to assist the child in meeting the child’s post high school goals.
Who gets a Summary of Performance?

- The SOP is required for students’ with an IEP who are:
  - graduating with a regular diploma
  - aging out of special education
- The SOP requirement does not apply to students who leave secondary school with a GED credential or alternate diploma and whose eligibility for special education services has not terminated.
  - However, there is nothing in IDEA or the Part B regulations that would prevent a local education agency from providing this information to a student who leaves under these circumstances.
How does the SOP requirement impact practice?

- The word summary provides a clue:
  - Districts’ accumulate a wealth of information regarding their students including: life goals, preferences and interests, functional and academic strengths and needs, needed accommodations, strategies for success, etc.
  - A Summary of Performance is closely tied to information in the IEP BUT it is a separate document that condenses and organizes key information that should follow the student.

- Information in the SOP ideally should assist in determining reasonable accommodations in post-secondary settings
Timing of completion of SOP may vary

• The Summary of Performance must be completed during the final year of the student’s secondary education.
  – The timing of completion may vary depending on the student’s post-school goals.

• Providing the SOP when it is most timely makes sense!

• The Summary of Performance is most useful when linked with the IEP process and the student has had the opportunity to actively participate in the development of this document.

• SOPs which include information about a student’s current accommodations and academic skills/functioning are very useful to post-secondary Disability Services professionals.
Tips for timing...

- Stagger SOP development and finalize across a school year instead of trying to do them all at the end of a school year.

- Begin thinking “with the end in mind” during the high school years and create a note page or portfolio of important accomplishments, accommodations, etc. that will assist in synthesizing the most important information for the SOP!

- Involve other key people in the student’s life, e.g., significant teachers, mentors, counselors, family.
  - SOP development should not be viewed as a one-person, paper pushing endeavor.
A well-written Summary of Performance:

• Should make the reader feel like they know the student!

• Can be thought of as a portable, user-friendly tool that students and families can use (just as you or I might develop a portfolio to back up our resume).

• Provides a crucial linkage from secondary school to post-secondary life!
Who should be involved in completing the SOP?

- It is valuable and practical to use a team process that includes:
  - Student
  - Family
  - School personnel including the special education teacher, general education teacher, guidance counselor, school psychologist and/or related service personnel who know the student and, if appropriate, adult agency personnel such as vocational rehabilitation counselor and pre-admission and screening agency (PAS)
Connection to Self-Advocacy Skills

• Students need effective self-advocacy skills to actually use the SOP.

• Students need effective self-advocacy skills to negotiate work and post-secondary schools settings (where they might use the document).
  – Students need to gain hands-on practice in self-advocacy and self-determination! These skills are vital in a post-secondary setting!
  – Authoring and/or reviewing the SOP provides an opportunity to gain practice in describing their academics strengths and needs.
Supporting Student Self-Determination

• Rather than just give the SOP to students’ when they leave:
  – Use a student-directed SOP to frame transition plans
    • Incorporate all transition assessment
      – Academic, vocational, social, living
  – Teach students to develop and present their own SOP
    • Provides framework for exit meeting
    • Information flows into planning document and process
Who can the student share the SOP with?

• Others that may be working with the student to obtain services and supports in post-secondary settings. For example:
  – Service coordinators
  – College Disability Services Coordinators
  – Writing centers
  – Tutoring centers
  – Teaching faculty
  – Employers/Human Resource professionals
  – Vocational Rehabilitation (DRS)

• It is the student/young adult’s decision to share the SOP.
The SOP as a tool to assist in determining adult services

- The SOP can provide information that may be used to determine a student’s eligibility for services from the Division of Rehabilitation Services (DRS).

- The SOP can also serve as a functional document that provides DRS or other agencies with information describing:
  - a student’s vocational, employment, academic and personal achievements
  - how and when the student performs best, and
  - vocational and employment supports needed by the student.

- An SOP that informs DRS or other agencies of the student’s academic and functional performance may minimize delays in the transition service delivery system and better prepare the student for a successful career.
Recommendations from Disability Service Providers in Postsecondary Education

- Student strengths and needs should be written in an objective manner
  - Use assessment language like average, below average, above average, etc.
  - Do not use value words like good, nice, slow, brilliant, significant, etc.
  - Eligibility is dependent upon a need, deficit and a disability so document actual levels of performance clearly and without an overly positive bias
  - Honest, objective, clear and concise
  - Support active student involvement to build self-determination skills (e.g., have students’ complete the Student Perspective page as part of an assignment)
  - Student Perspective page is a must from the post-secondary perspective!
Clarifications

• Section 614(c)(5) of the IDEA does not require school districts to include in the SOP the documentation necessary to determine a student’s eligibility for another program or service, such as the Vocational Rehabilitation Services program (DRS) and/or accommodations in institutions of higher education.

• However, the SOP may include information that may assist another program to determine a student’s eligibility for services or accommodations.

• Students’ with disabilities in post-secondary settings, whether education or employment, must articulate their need/desire for accommodations and be able to talk about past accommodations and academic supports.

SUMMARY OF PERFORMANCE (AS APPROPRIATE)

STUDENT PERSPECTIVE

This should be completed by the student or with the assistance of another adult.

1. How does your disability affect you in the work environment? What strengths do you have in the work environment?

2. What strengths and needs should professionals know about you as you enter the postsecondary education or work environment?

3. How does your disability affect your schoolwork and school activities (e.g. grades, assignments)?

4. Complete the table below by identifying the accommodations and supports that have been tried by teachers or by you (e.g. pacing, extra time, visual supports, adaptive equipment) to help you succeed in school. Please indicate whether each one was effective or not effective:

STUDENT PERMISSION

The Illinois State Board of Education is required to report to the Federal government on the post-school outcomes of students one year after they leave high school (e.g., are you employed, are you attending college, etc).

May we have your or your parents’ permission to be contacted by your school district one year after you leave to ask some questions about what you are doing?

□ Yes □ No

Bridging the Gap to Successful Adult Outcomes

Once a student leaves secondary education, either by graduating or aging out, there are no guaranteed programs that take over where IDEA leaves off.
Key Federal Legislation

Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA)
- Schools’ responsibilities
- Services VS Accommodations
- Least Restrictive Environment (LRE), quality, and free appropriate public education
- Availability of federal funds
- Applies until student graduates or reaches the age of 22

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act
- Individual responsibility
- Public institution responsibility for cost of assistance provision
- Focus on services and supports
- Focus on non-discrimination
- Receipt of Federal funds by public institutions is linked to compliance with the law
- Applications across environments

Americans with Disabilities Act
- Individual responsibility
- Institutions and employers responsibility for cost of assistance provision
- Focus on accommodations VS services or supports
- Focus on nondiscrimination, reasonableness and undue hardship
- No link between Federal funds and compliance with the law
- Application across all environments
Gaps and Inconsistencies

The Federal policy shift experienced as youth depart lower education has significant impacts on youth with disabilities as they seek assistance within post-secondary education and employment settings.

- Shift in roles and responsibilities
- Shift in the process of determining assistance
- The Summary of Performance is designed to be a vehicle to assist in successful navigation from school to adult life
